Ethics, Cultural Competency and Mental Health (and Health Care) Disparities in Minority Communities

A Day of Learning Using Video, Case Scenarios and Ethical Frameworks

According to the APA, “Most racial and ethnic minority groups overall have similar – or in some cases, fewer – mental disorders than whites. However, the consequences of mental illness in minorities may be long lasting”. As helping professionals, we have an ethical obligation to explore evidenced-based research around causes of these disparities in minority communities and to actively work on closing these gaps in care. This innovative training will take a closer look at mental health (and some health care examples as well) disparities in minority communities. Using video and case scenarios, we will explore different views that minority groups may hold around mental health. We will also explore some potential barriers to care in these communities and ways to overcome them. We will define and discuss implicit bias. As we go through our day of learning, we will apply ethical standards, ethical frameworks and cultural competency to each of our discussions.

Agenda:

8:00 – 8:30am:	Registration and Networking
8:30 – 10:30am:	Session 1
10:30 – 10:45am:	Break
10:45 – 11:45am:	Session 2
11:45 – 12:30pm:	Lunch
12:30 – 2:45pm:	Session 3

By attending our workshop, you will be able to:

1. Identify 3 potential contributing factors to mental health disparities in minority communities.
2. State 2 ethical standards (from social work, counseling, nursing and case management) as well as the ETHIC Framework Model – and how these apply to our discussion of mental health disparities.
3. Define implicit bias.
4. Identify at least 3 different minority culture viewpoints of mental health and how these could affect access to care.
5. Name 2 potential ways to overcome these barriers to these health care disparities in minority communities.
