Recognizing and Reporting Elder Abuse for Allied Health Professionals: Perspectives from a Detective

As helping professionals, we are ethically bound to protect the most vulnerable members of our communities. Every year, over 5 million aging adults report experiencing abuse, neglect, or exploitation - an under-recognized and under-reported issue. Elder abuse can have serious consequences, such as the increased risk of mortality, dementia, and depression. As mandated reporters, we play an important role in preventing, identifying and addressing elder abuse and neglect. It is vitally important that we can identify the different types of elder abuse, recognize the signs and symptoms of abuse and neglect, and the resources for reporting suspected abuse and neglect. In this informative presentation by Detective Bryant Olejnik of the Cherokee Sheriff's Office's Special Victims Unit, participants will gain the information and resources necessary to prevent and address elder abuse in our communities.
