Personal Perspectives:

The Evolution of End-of-Life Care

For many us, palliative care and hospice are understood as crucial parts of our care delivery system. Studies have repeatedly shown that palliative care and hospice improve the quality of life for patients, providing them the dignity of choice at the end-of-life. In actuality, these segments of our healthcare system are relatively new with the first Congressional provision to create a Medicare hospice benefit that was passed in 1982. How have the palliative care and hospice sectors changed in the past few decades and how will they evolve in the decades to come? Hugh Henderson, the founder of Capstone Hospice, has worked in end-of-life care for over 28 years. Lending his unique firsthand perspectives - this insightful presentation will explore the evolution of hospice and palliative care, what changes we can expect in the future of these sectors, and how as helping professionals we can assist patients and their families navigate end-of-life care.

Agenda:

Speaker Information:

Hugh Henderson began his hospice career in 1992 as a Counselor with a local hospice organization. After 24 years of seeing the hospice industry from all different angles and serving in various hospice leadership positions with local, regional and national companies, Mr. Henderson decided to open Capstone Hospice in 2015. Capstone exists as a values-based company focusing on exceptional people delivering exceptional care.

Mr. Henderson holds a Master's Degree in Community Counseling from Georgia State University and a Bachelor's degree in Educational Psychology from the University of Georgia. He and his wife, Karen, have been happily married for 28 years and have three children, ages 24, 21, and 18. When not fulfilling his career-long passion for hospice, Hugh enjoys spending time with his family, playing tennis and watching college football.
