Ethics, ethics and more ethics are in store for you in these engaging, entertaining and thought-provoking presentations. One of our most popular presenters, Jason Lesandrini, Assistant Vice President of Ethics, Advance Care Planning and Spiritual Health at a major Atlanta Health System; Adjunct Faculty; Mercer University, will begin by applying ethical codes of social workers, nurses, case managers and counselors to Ethical Frameworks and establishing these as we use these frameworks to try to resolve ethical dilemmas. He will follow this up by a discussion around “The Complexity of Patient Provider Request– Ethical responses to ethnic, race or religious based requests”. Using case scenarios, Mr. Lesandrini will then explore Truth Telling in the medical environment – what to do when patients do not wish to disclose certain information? What ethical dilemmas arise from this and how do you solve them? Finally, he will close out the day by looking at Moral Distress and “Ethics Narrative Therapy” – using writing as a practical solution to a challenging ethical problem. Mr. Lesandrini will guide us through a discussion of how we can use narratives to work through some of the ethical dilemmas we face. After attending this event, you will leave refreshed with a new perspective on ethics.
